Miss Nansen is Starred In Film at the Orpheum

Gorgeous Costumes Are Seen in "A Paradise Lost," in Five Acts.

Beautiful and popular Betty Nansen, of the idol of the movie world, the support of an all-star cast of great actors, appears in her greatest New York success, "A Paradise Lost," in five acts, today at the Orpheum Theatre. This wonderful play, produced at a terrific cost and gorgeous costumes worn by Miss Nansen, play a great part. It is an adaptation from the famous novel of the same name, and has played to such houses wherever shown. Tomorrow the marvelous Mutual picture, "Ghosts," from the immortal tale by Ibsen, featuring the great Henry Walthall, will be the offering at this theatre.

Scene from "A Texas Steer," To day's Feature Screen Offering at the Orpheum Theatre.

"A Texas Steer," by Charles Hoyt, play that has made millions of theatre-goers laugh, is the action at the Bijou theatre. It is a rollicking reel of giggles, featuring Brander, owner of grazers on the Texas plains, does extra to enter politics. However, wife and charming daughter, Miss Hoyt, long for the delights of social

Miss Winifred Greenwood and Mr. Edwin Coxen are seen in a 2-part masterful drama, supported by an all star cast of Mutual screen favorites, entitled—

"A Devine Decree"
(A late American release)

"Her Wedding Night"
(A Joker Comedy)

Miss Cleo Madison in a 2-part thrilling drama from start to finish, well supported, entitled

A Fairy

Odeon Theater

"The Troubles of a Bell Boy"

Billy Riddle's "Sunshine Maids" is putting over another winner at the Odeon in the new bill, "Troubles of a Bell Boy." Again the comedy stands out. Billy playing the bell boy and Jay Hollis the hotel proprietor. He keeps the audiences in roars of laughter. Reedy Duran as the "straight man," puts his lines over in good shape, and his song number "Going Back to Broadway" is well rendered.

Special mention must be made of the unique electrical telephone duo by Miss Ryme and Billy Riddle. It is something new and makes a big hit. Among the musical numbers are: "Mobile Sam," by Miss Violet Mansfield, and "Syncope Walk," by Billy Riddle. Taking the show from start to finish it is equally good if not better than the opening bill.

For Friday and Saturday "The Rich Mrs. Single" will be the offering and it promises to be the funniest yet.

The pictures for today are "The Poor Baby," an Edison comedy; "The Keyboard Strategy," a Vitaphone comedy featuring Lilian Walker, and a Sells jungle zoo picture, "The Lion Hunter."

The dignified bearing of Thomas Commerford, Essanay actor, makes him the ideal man for the part of Gomez, prime minister in Essanay's six-act feature photoplay, "In the Palace of the King," which will be released in October through V. L. S. E. Inc. Mr. Commerford always is selected for parts requiring a stately or military bearing, and he has appeared as the fierce old count in "Graustark" and as chief justice in "Caught."

Sarah Bernhardt denies that she has cancelled her American engagement. She says she has postponed it for two months in order to get together another company, as the actors with her on the previous tour are now serving in the French army.

A. H. Woods has commenced his season with emphasis. He has two new plays established in New York. Eleven companies on tour and is planning a series of new productions, including the "New York Ghetto," with Louis Calvert, the English actor, in the leading role; "Potash and Perlmutter in Wall Street," by Montague Glass, and "Roll, Cooper, Megrue," a new play for Pauline Frederick, and "The Peacock Lady," by Benrimo and Amelia Rives, besides other plays.

Grand in Miss M. E. Braddon's gripping, society drama, "Lady Audley's Secret." This great drama of deep interest and years standing, needs no introduction to the American public, for it was in this country that the great play made its biggest success. Miss Braddon has made a most pronounced hit in the title role, in fact she has caused more talk regarding her conception of Lady Audley, than any other screen production in which she has ever appeared. The added picture on this programme is Ring W. Lardner's big league stuff, "You Know Me Al."

Tomorrow, the Cort Film Corporation will present Walker Whiteside, who is the only legitimate successor to the lamented Richard Mansfield, in "The Melting Pot."

One of the advantages of the "movies" has been the possibility of showing easterners the beauties of the West, especially as such stories as "In the Sunset Country," depicting life in the open when a gun was the chief law of interest. Bret Haris, introduced us to these hardy pioneers and now the pictures show us what previously our imagination conjured.

In this Bison film, are introduced two new Universal players, Luella Maxams and Walter Rogers, both late of the Eclair Company. Sherman Bainbridge, who played heavy roles in the Bison company, formerly directed by Henry McKee, also does some splendid work in this interesting and appealing picture.
